THE 2013-2014 PENNSYLVANIA ENVIRONMENTAL SCORECARD

Clean Water Action, Conservation Voters of Pennsylvania, and the Sierra Club present the 2013-2014 Pennsylvania Environmental Scorecard, a permanent record that scores every Pennsylvania state legislator on environmental votes cast during the 2013 – 2014 Legislative Session.

This legislative session was notable for the large number of attacks on environmental protection. The PA House of Representatives generated most of this anti-environmental legislation.

The organizations delayed release of the Scorecard to October 2014 in order to include Senate votes on several pieces of anti-environment legislation that passed the House earlier in the year. These included HB 1565, which eliminates the requirement for riparian buffers on all “exceptional value” and “high quality” streams, and HB 2354, which gives the General Assembly the authority to reject plans by scientists and experts to reduce carbon pollution as required by the EPA’s Clean Power Plan.

2013-2014 Environmental Scorecard Committee:

Myron Arnowitt — Pennsylvania State Director, Clean Water Action
Thomas Au — Conservation Chair, Sierra Club Pennsylvania Chapter
Steve Hvozdovich — Marcellus Campaign Director, Clean Water Action

STANDING AGAINST PROGRESS

The federal Environmental Protection Agency recently released the Clean Power Plan, the most important national policy initiative in recent history to reduce pollution that directly contributes to climate change. The Clean Power Plan requires each state to design and implement plans to reduce carbon pollution from power plants. As proposed, Pennsylvania will be required to reduce carbon emissions by 31.69% by 2030.

In July 2014, the Pennsylvania House of Representatives passed HB 2354, specifically designed to disrupt and delay Pennsylvania's response to the Clean Power Plan. HB 2354 gives the legislature veto power over Pennsylvania's plan, putting control in the hands of politicians instead of scientists and experts. The Senate passed HB 2354 on October 15, 2014 and Governor Corbett is expected to sign the bill into law.

PARALYZING STATE ENVIRONMENTAL AGENCIES

The legislature continued its decade-long practice of slashing funding for the agencies and entities tasked with protecting our natural resources. The legislature has cut General Fund support for the Pennsylvania Department of Conservation and Natural Resources by nearly 90% since 2006. The budget also cut funding for the Delaware River Basin Commission, which currently prevents fracking in the eastern Pennsylvania, by 53.5%.

Despite strong opposition from the environmental community, the Senate voted to confirm Chris Abruzzo as the DEP Secretary in December 2013. The previous secretary, Michael Krancer, left the position in March 2013 to take a position as an attorney to the oil and gas industry, and the position was left unfilled for nine months. Like Krancer, Abruzzo has extensive ties to polluting industries and publicly denied the impacts of climate change during his confirmation hearing: "I've not read any scientific studies that would lead me to conclude there are adverse impacts to human beings, animals, or plant life at this small level of climate change."

GIVEAWAYS TO GAS DRILLERS

The House considered several Marcellus Works bills, including grants to build natural gas fueling stations and tax credits for private corporations to purchase natural gas vehicles. The Marcellus Works package sought to incentivize natural gas development at the taxpayers' expense.

The Senate did not consider any of the Marcellus Works package, but passed SB 739, which transferred $10 million from the Alternative Energy Investment Act to create new subsidies for the natural gas industry.

The most egregious example of trading our long-term natural heritage came in the 2014-2015 state budget, in which Governor Corbett and the legislature added $95 million to the budget by opening Pennsylvania's state parks and forests to additional gas drilling. The environmental community strongly opposed this provision of the budget, and polling indicates that more than 60% of Pennsylvanians oppose additional drilling in state parks and forests.
